THE ROOMS STILL OPEN.

Communication from the Vice President of the Art League. THE VIRGINIAN stated a few days ago that the rooms of the Art League had been closed for the summer and would not be opened until next September. This was a mistake, which the Vice President of the League corrects in the following communication:

Nonvolk, Va., June 29, 1895. The members of the Art League may be interested to know that its rooms are not closed for the summer, as stated in an article which appeared in The Virginian of June 23d, but are open for their use as usual, and will be kept in good order as during the winter.

The classes will be resumed in the autumn, the following teachers giving instruction, an hour once each week, as heretofore: Pencil drawing, Miss as herotofore: Penoil drawing, Miss Donby; cast drawing, Miss Hendren; pen and ink, Mr, Ward Winchell; water color painting, Miss Daisy Corley; oil painting, Mrs. Rice; china painting, Miss Florence Smith; decorative china painting, Mrs. T. L. Dornin.

Fifty-one persons have received in-Fifty-one persons have received in-struction during the past season. This little correction will let the public know that our rooms are still open and to be enjoyed by its members during the summer. Mins. F. A. Moong, First Vice Pres. Norfolk Art League.

BEFORE THE JUSTICE.

Arraigned, Charged With Fighting and Resisting an Officer.

Messrs. S. W. Small, Foster Murray and Hugh Murray were before the Police Justice yesterday morning. Messrs. Small and Foster Murray were charged with fighting and Mr. Hugh Murray with assaulting an officer.

Mr. Small requested that the warrant against young Murray he with rant against young Murray be with-drawn, as he received no injuries at hands and did not desire to prosecute

Mr. Hugh Murray said he did not Mr. Hugh Murray said he did not know that Deputy Sheriff White was an officer. He could not see his badge. Mr. White asked the Justice to dismiss the charge. He believed under the excitement of the moment Mr. Murray did not know what he was doing. Justice introughs took the matter under advisement.

The matter was advertised, and yesterday morning the bids were opened and found to be as follows: C. Hodges, $28,500; W. M. Hannau, Jr., and James T. Hannau, $24,960; W. B. East, $26,948. The City Council will have to act upon the bids.

Mr. Michael Enright, of this city, has secured a patent for what is looked upon as a valuable adjunct to the loading and unloading of vessels during inclement weather, in the shape of a portable awning. It is claimed for it that it will be a source of great benefit in facilitating the loading and unloading of vessels, work on which is generally suspended during inclement weather. The awning is very ingeniously arranged to form a complete cover for the hold and gangway. It looks very much like a tent with an awning extending out from its entrance. It can be automatically worked up and let out in accordance with the settling and rising of the vessel as the same receives or discharges its cargo.
